

Natalia Zhygailo,

Doctor of Psychology, Professor,
Lviv State University after Ivan Franko

Iryna Zoshiy,

Teacher of the Department of Psychology,
Lviv Institute of PJSC

“Higher education institution “Interregional Academy of Personnel Management”

Psychological features of valuable orientations of students – future lawyers

The research of value orientation in the structure of personality, the explanation of the content of value orientations of students in modern society, the analysis of the values of future lawyers who occupy higher levels in the hierarchy of values with stressing out those who lose their values are done in the article. Moreover, the article analyzes the choice between value orientations of students of the first and the fourth courses. The study also proves the differences between the choice of value orientations of students and their orientation. The conclusions and recommendations for the formation and development of value orientation of students are also highlighted in the article.

Keywords: values, future lawyers, college students, personality, professionalism, legal work, professional competence, students, legal activities, orientation of an individual.