

O. V. Stelmakh

Lecturer of the Department of Applied Psychology and Pedagogy,
Lviv State University of life safety, Lviv

Training Program as an Effective Means of Formation of Professional Self-Concept for Future Rescuers

The article presents theoretical approaches to the definition of training, the basic features of the training. The author proposes training program of formation of professional self-concept; describes basic training units; describes the objectives and structure of the training program. It is also proposes that the aim of the training program is to form specific component of professional structure of self-concept.

Keywords: social and psychological training, humanistic direction, classes, members, professional self-concept.*